

Question Categories for Designing Interest Surveys

The following six categories are useful for making interest surveys as together they give a broad picture of children's interests, and also provide valuable information for planning more engaging, personalized instruction. In each category below, there are some sample questions to demonstrate the kinds of questions that might be considered in a given category. One of the biggest factors in deciding which questions to include are the child's grade level. Some of these questions are more appropriate for older children. Others may need some modification for use with younger audiences.
